Dear Terry Hinds:

Thank you for your reply dated Aug. 03, 2023, to our inquiry about changes to items on your tax return.

The Notice CP2000 we sent you was a proposed increase to your tax. The increase is based on information employers, banks, or other payers reported to us under your name and taxpayer identification number. If you believe this information is incorrect, provide a signed statement explaining why.

Cancelled debt is considered income if a debt owed to the federal government, financial institution or other creditor is discharged and it is not otherwise excluded from gross income. The cancelled debt in question was reported in your name and social security number. When contacting Barclays Bank reference account number 9067.

If you don't agree with the income reported to us by the payers below, ask them for a corrected income statement or written verification and send it to us. The statement should show the correct amount of income they paid to you for the tax year listed above. When we receive the corrected statement or the payer's written verification from you, we'll correct our proposed changes. If the payer won't correct the document or provide written verification, tell us, and explain why the payer's information is incorrect. We can't correct our proposed changes without this information.
